A FRENCH TRANSLATION of Pasquino in estasi nuovo, a satirical dialogue between Pasquelle and Marfoire in the manner of Lucian, celebrated for its attacks on the papacy and allusions to contemporaries and to contemporary events.

The author studied at Turin where he was converted to Lutheranism at the age of twenty. He taught at Turin, Milan, Pavia, and other North Italian towns, and was arrested and imprisoned by the Inquisition. (The 'Dialogue de Probus' appended here describes his escape in 1537 from an archiepiscopal prison.) In 1542 Curione fled to Lausanne and in 1547 moved to Basel, where he was given the chair of Latin eloquence. His bibliography includes numerous pedagogical treatises, commentaries on Cicero's orations and rhetorical works, on Persius and Juvenal, and translations of Appian and Aeschines.

Curione allowed two versions of this work to circulate in manuscript for several years and apparently did not supervise the passage of either into print. In 1543 a

German translation ‘auß Welscher Sprach’ of the second, larger version was published by Philip Ulhart at Augsburg.² The next year both versions were printed in Latin at Basel and the second version was printed in Latin by Jean Girard at Geneva. Editions in Italian of both versions followed in 1545–1546. Our book published in 1547 is a French translation of the second Latin version. An English translation, entitled Pasquine in a Traunce, appeared in 1566.³
