ONLY EDITION of an ambitious monograph on Greek mythology in art, divided into three sections, treating respectively Achilles, Odysseus, and Orestes, followed by an appendix, additions and corrections.

The work was the product of a voyage to Italy undertaken by the author in 1826–1827 for the purpose of discovering ‘unpublished’ antiquities in private and public collections. It was projected in twelve parts, of which the first two (Achilléide), describing depictions of the Marriage of Peleus and Thetis and of Achilles himself, appeared in 1828.² The third and fourth parts (Orestéide) were issued in 1830;³ parts five and six (Odysséide) followed in 1833.⁴ Publication was then suspended, probably owing to insufficient subscriptions, or else because of severe and damaging reviews published by Jean-Antoine Letronne, the greatest name in France as a Greek scholar.⁵

¹ In the imperfect copy sold by Sotheby’s, ‘Greece and the Levant: A Private Library’, 13 November 2008, lot 168, this plate was present in two states, plain and coloured. The cataloguer states: ‘The 93 plates in this work are numbered 1–80, in addition to which there are plates 10A & B, 26A & B, 2 plates 29, 31A, 42A, 44A & B, 49A, 57A and 67A, all of which are called for in the plate list (pp.429–430). However this copy has plate 49 in two states (plain and coloured) which is not called for and lacks plate 72A, which is called for (but which seems very similar in subject to plate 72). Plate 72A never seems to have been included in this copy’. The Blackmer copy, sold by Sotheby’s, ‘The library of Henry Myron Blackmer II’, London, 11–13 October 1989, lot 944, was also imperfect (lacking plate 2); the copy in the Royal Academy Library, London, lacks plate 5.

Many well-known antiquities are discussed, often controversially, such as the Ludovisi Mars, the Mattei bas-relief of Thetis and Peleus, and the Barberini (Portland) vase. The author's desire to present 'unpublished' objects is realised through the reproduction of a large number of vases in the collections of Edme-Antoine Durand, the Comte de Pourtalès-Gorgier, and Thomas Hope.⁶ Many of these vases can be traced to permanent collections, in Brussels,⁷ Cambridge,⁸ London,⁹ Naples,¹⁰ New York,¹¹ and Paris.¹²

² The prospectus was reprinted in Journal des savans, April 1828, pp.252–253: '...L'ouvrage paroîtra en douze livraisons, qui se succéderont avec toute la célérité que pourra comporter l'exécution même d'un livre de cette nature, qui exige tout le soin, toute la correction typographique possibles... . Le prix de chaque livraison est de 16 francs 70 centimes, et celui de l'ouvrage entier, de 200 francs. Il sera tiré dix exemplaires avec épreuves sur papier de Chine, dont le prix sera double. La première livraison paroîtra dans le courant de juin prochain.' The first two livraisons were announced in the Bibliographie de la France ou journal général de l'Imprimerie et de la Librairie, no. 52, 27 December 1828, p.930 no. 7554 ('Première et deuxième livraisons. Un seul cahier in-folio de 29 feuillets, plus 25 planches dont 2 doubles... L'ouvrage formera deux volumes et sera distribué en douze livraisons'). Our copy is finely bound in russia leather decorated in gilt by a broad roll of the type employed by the Mannheim bookbinder Franz Sebastian Voll (1783–1846). Born in Würzburg, Voll was admitted to the guild of binders in Mannheim in 1807.¹³ His clients included the princely house of Fürstenberg,¹⁴ Grand-Duchess Stephanie von Baden,¹⁵ and perhaps Ernst August I, King of Hannover.¹⁶
