Paris 1774 – 1842 Paris

Description d'un Pavé en Mosaïque découvert dans l'ancienne Ville d'Italica, aujourd'hui le village de Santiponce, près de Séville; suivie de recherches sur la Peinture en Mosaïque chez les Anciens, et les Monuments en ce genre qui n'ont point encore été publiés.

Paris, De l'Imprimerie de P. Didot l'Aîné, 1802

FOLIO (680 × 510 mm), (54)ff. letterpress signed $\pi^1 \chi^1$ 1–52¹ and paginated (4) 1–103 (1), with nine engravings printed with the text (title, pp.1, 8, 9, 18, 19, 76, 77, 103) of which the last two are aquatints printed in colours; plus frontispiece and twenty-two numbered plates, of which the frontispiece and eighteen plates are aquatints printed in colours with additional hand-colouring (plate 22 is double-page).

CONTENTS (folio 1) printed half-title, lettered Mosaïque d'Italica; (2) coloured engraved half-title, imitating a mosaic inscription, lettered Description d'un Pavé en Mosaïque découvert dans l'ancienne Ville d'Italica; (3) title-page (transcribed above) with engraved vignette 'Médailles Italica'; (4) Préface, with engraved vignette (paginated 1–2); (5–7) Explication des Vignettes, with engraved tail-piece (pp.3–8); (8–12) Notice Historique sur la ville d'Italica, with an engraved head-piece and an engraved tail-piece (pp.13–18); (13–41) Explication de la Mosaïque, with an engraved head-piece and an engraved tail-piece (pp.19–76); (42–54) Recherches sur la Peinture en Mosaïque chez les Anciens, et les Monuments en ce genre qui n'ont point encore été publiés, with coloured aquatint head-piece and tail-piece (pp.77–103).

ILLUSTRATION twenty-two numbered plates interpolated in the text, of which eighteen are printed in colours, and also finished by hand in colour (nos. [1], 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11 [wrongly numbered 17], 12, 13, 14, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21), and four are plain (10, 15, 18, 22). The illustrations printed with the text show medals, inscriptions, imperial portraits, a map, sculptures of the Muses (from the Towneley collection), etc.

Occasional spotting, confined to margins except on the last plate; some quires of text browned.

BOUND in contemporary russia leather, covers decorated in gilt with frames of neoclassical ornament; engraved ticket printed on green paper Gebunden bei Ph. Selenka in Wiesbaden.

FIRST EDITION of this beautifully-illustrated work documenting the mosaic mentioned in the title, discovered by labourers on 12 December 1799 at Italica in southwest Spain, reported to José Moscoso, a monk of the nearby monastery of San Isidro del Campo, and by him to Francisco Espinosa, a lawyer in Seville, who paid for it be cleaned and enclosed by a wall. Despite these measures, the mosaic was soon completely lost,¹ and Laborde's work is now the primary witness.

The floor measured about 13 × 9 metres. A large rectangular panel in the centre depicted a chariot-race taking place around the barrier, and the carcheles at one end; the border incorporated busts of the Muses with their attributes, animal, bird, and plant motifs.² According to present knowledge, the mosaic dates from well into the fourth century. It is more interesting iconographically than other circus pavements found in Spain, as it is based on a different, more imaginative, and possibly Roman source.³ Several other mosaics are reproduced by Laborde for comparison (including a fragment discovered at Tarragona).

The plates were drawn by the author (except for one by Jean-Baptiste De Bret, and one by Dutailly) and engraved by Jacques Marchand (except one by Louis-Pierre Baltard, one by Jacques-Joseph Coiny, and one by the author). The engravings printed with the text are after drawings by the author engraved by Coiny, Jean-Baptiste Antoine Cloquet, Louis Charles Ruotte, François Aubertin, or Leclerc.

The work was published by Pierre Didot in an edition of 160 copies, all printed on 'papier vélin grand aigle satiné', and priced '200 fr. cartonné, à dos de maroquin'.⁴ An edition in Spanish, Descripción de un pavimento en mosaico descubierto en la antigua Itálica, hoy Santiponce, en las cercanías de Sevilla, with the same series of plates (adapted to give measurements in Spanish), was printed in 1806. In some copies of the Spanish edition the imprint reads 'En Paris M. DCCCVI' and in the others 'En Madrid M. DCCCVI'.⁵
