[Manin, Ludovico]

Venice 1725 – 1802 Venice

Componimenti poetici per l'ingresso solenne alla dignità di procuratore di S. Marco per merito di sua eccellenza il signor Lodovico Manin

Venice: Giovanni Battista Albrizzi, 1764

PROVENANCE with bookseller Arthur Lauria, Paris — Maurice Burrus (1882-1959), exlibris and acquisition label (dated 1938) — sale by Christie's, 'Maurice Burrus (1882-1959): la Bibliothèque d'un homme de goût. Première partie', Paris, 15 December 2015, lot 133

Binding lightly rubbed, but colour vibrant; one upper corner creased, minor loss at foot of the spine.

BOUNDED in contemporary pasteboards, over-covered by a sheet of patterned rose-coloured paste-paper, block-printed in gold with broad woodcut frames incorporating foliage and shell ornament, enclosing a semé of stars and escutcheons bearing the armorial insignia of Ludovico Manin (upper cover) and family monogram (lower cover). Preserved in a morocco-backed box.

THIS BEAUTIFUL PUBLICATION commemorates the election in 1763 of Ludovico Manin (1726-1802) as one of nine Procuratori di San Marco, responsible for the administration of the sestieri 'de ultra canalem' (Dorsoduro, Santa Croce, and San Polo). This was a high office, carrying life tenure, second in prestige only to that of the Doge. From the ranks of the Procuracy the Doge was usually chosen, and on 9 March 1789 Ludovico Manin was elected Doge on the first ballot. He was the last Doge of Venice, governing until 1797, when he was forced to abdicate by Napoleon Bonaparte.

The Venetian nobility of Ludovico Manin's generation marked special occasions – a betrothal or a marriage, election to public office, the entry of a son or daughter into a religious order – with elaborate festivities, including concerts, cantatas, serenatas, recitations of laudatory poems and orations. A souvenir of the occasion often was presented to guests in the shape of a pretty, slender book, in which the texts of the canzoni, madrigals, and sonnets, epistles, or orations, were preserved. By the middle of the eighteenth century, these keepsakes had evolved into sumptuous books, adorned with engraved portraits and allegorical vignettes, each page of text enlivened by an engraved frame.<sup>1</sup>

The rich Manin family from Friuli chose Giovanni Battista Albrizzi (1698-1777), the most distinguished publisher in Venice, to print three souvenirs of Ludovico's ingresso into the august ranks of the Procurators of San Marco.<sup>2</sup> Our book is 'by far the grandest' of these three, 'widely agreed to be the finest example of what may be called "presentation books"', 'an epitome of magnificence and invention' and 'one of the greatest illustrated books of its period'.<sup>3</sup> It contains a dedication in verse by Conte Gasparo Gozzi (1713-1786) and contributions from some thirty-five authors,<sup>4</sup> including 'Canzone a sua eccellenza Elisabetta Grimani procuratessa Manino' by Cristina Roccati (1734-1814)<sup>5</sup> and sonnets by Camilla Solar d'Asti Fenaroli (1723-1769).<sup>6</sup>

Albrizzi's publications were especially noted for their engraved ornaments and vignettes, often designed by the finest Venetian engravers. His first books to have engraved borders decorating every page were the 1746 nozze Marc' Antonio Grimani-Maria Pisani and 1753 ingresso Luigi

Pisani; in both, frames designed by Giovanni Battista Piazzetta are repeated throughout.<sup>7</sup> Albrizzi's next such book was the 1763 ingresso Gian Francesco Pisani. For this, the Florentine printmaker Francesco Bartolozzi (1727-1815), resident in Venice since 1748, designed and engraved a set of twenty page borders, employed in pairs, each pair printed four times.<sup>8</sup>

Albrizzi engaged Bartolozzi again for the 1764 ingresso Ludovico Manin, commissioning a new set of twenty engraved page frames. These were used together with the earlier set, so that each border now appeared only twice.<sup>9</sup> Bartolozzi also produced for the new publication a frontispiece, title-plate, portrait, and six vignettes (head- and tail-pieces).<sup>10</sup> 'Together with the Ingresso for Gian Francesco Pisani (1763), this book stands as the ideal synthesis of Bartolozzi's extraordinary technical and stylistic virtuosity in book decoration'.<sup>11</sup>

Our copy is preserved in its original 'presentation binding' of rose-coloured carte remondiniane, the covers block-printed in gold with a design in the same taste as the decoration within, to 'suggest the sumptuous character of rich contemporary gold-tooled on leather bindings'.<sup>12</sup> The copy was first cased in bare boards, then over-covered with a sheet of paste-paper which had been coloured to look like cloth or leather and block-printed.<sup>13</sup> The entire cover was printed from a single, large woodblock. Two frames were cut in the block, with slight variations in cutting: one frame encloses an escutcheon bearing the Manin arms (upper cover); the other an escutcheon displaying the family monogram (lower cover). Separating the two frames is a column of alternating diamond and star ornaments (cover spine).

Bartolozzi's portrait is not derived from the painting commissioned by the Manin family in April 1764 from Alessandro and Pietro Longhi (Civici Musei di Udine), afterwards engraved by Carlo Orsolini; see Martina Frank, 'Lodovico Manin mecenate' in Al servizio dell'amatissima patria: le Memorie di Lodovico Manin e la gestione del potere nel Settecento veneziano, edited by Dorit Raines (Venice 1997), pp.179-189 (p.187 note 9 and fig. 2). Fig. 6. Detail of upper cover

The earliest known binding of this type covers the 1757 ingresso Lorenzo Morosini as Procuratore (printed by Antonio Zatta), where however the design is achieved from an etched and engraved copperplate.<sup>14</sup> Some copies of the 1763 ingresso Gian Francesco Pisani (printed by G.B. Albrizzi) are in comparable bindings, in this instance with the design printed from a woodblock.<sup>15</sup> The woodblock used the following year for the covers of Albrizzi's ingresso Ludovico Manin is cut in a still more pronouncedly rococo style. A semé of stars is incorporated and the covers of the new binding now harmonise perfectly with the page frames and other engraved decoration within.<sup>16</sup> No subsequent use of the woodblock has been observed. Reduced copies were used to decorate the covers of Albrizzi's other 1764 presentation book for Manin<sup>17</sup> and on Albrizzi's 1764 nozze Barbaro-Barbarigo, in the latter instance with the Barbaro arms and monogram displayed on the escutcheons.<sup>18</sup> The great majority of extant copies of all these books are in ordinary paper bindings, or otherwise bound.

These other copies in paper covers featuring the Manin arms are recorded:

Robison, op. cit. (1991), pp.355-356: 'The design is printed in black or blue from an etched and engraved copperplate onto a plain or lightly toned paper, with some subsequent hand coloring'; Robison has since encountered the 1757 Zatta Morosini with the copperplate printed in red (private communication to the writer, 27 January 2016). The copy in the Houghton Library, f 52L-1113, is bound 'in contemporary stiffened decorated paper covers with armorial designs engraved on front and back covers; engravings hand-colored in yellow, blue and green' (Library OPAC); Eleanor M. Garvey, 'Some Venetian illustrated books of the eighteenth century in the Harvard College Library' in Bulletin du Bibliophile (1999), pp.293-309 (binding reproduced p.307 fig. 9).

<sup>15</sup> See Robison, op. cit. (1991), p.256 (printed in gold from a woodblock, on 'delicate rose-coloured paper that had been previously paste-printed with a slightly darker version of the same color, in a pattern of abstract flowers set into leaf-formed diamonds'). The Morgan Library copy, PML 62048, is bound in 'turquoise paste-paper with gilt-blocked Pisani arms' (catalogue).
